

American College of Education (ACE) Licensure Program Cumulative Completion Rate

CAEP Annual Reporting Measure Graduation Rates Initial and Advanced levels - Outcome #5

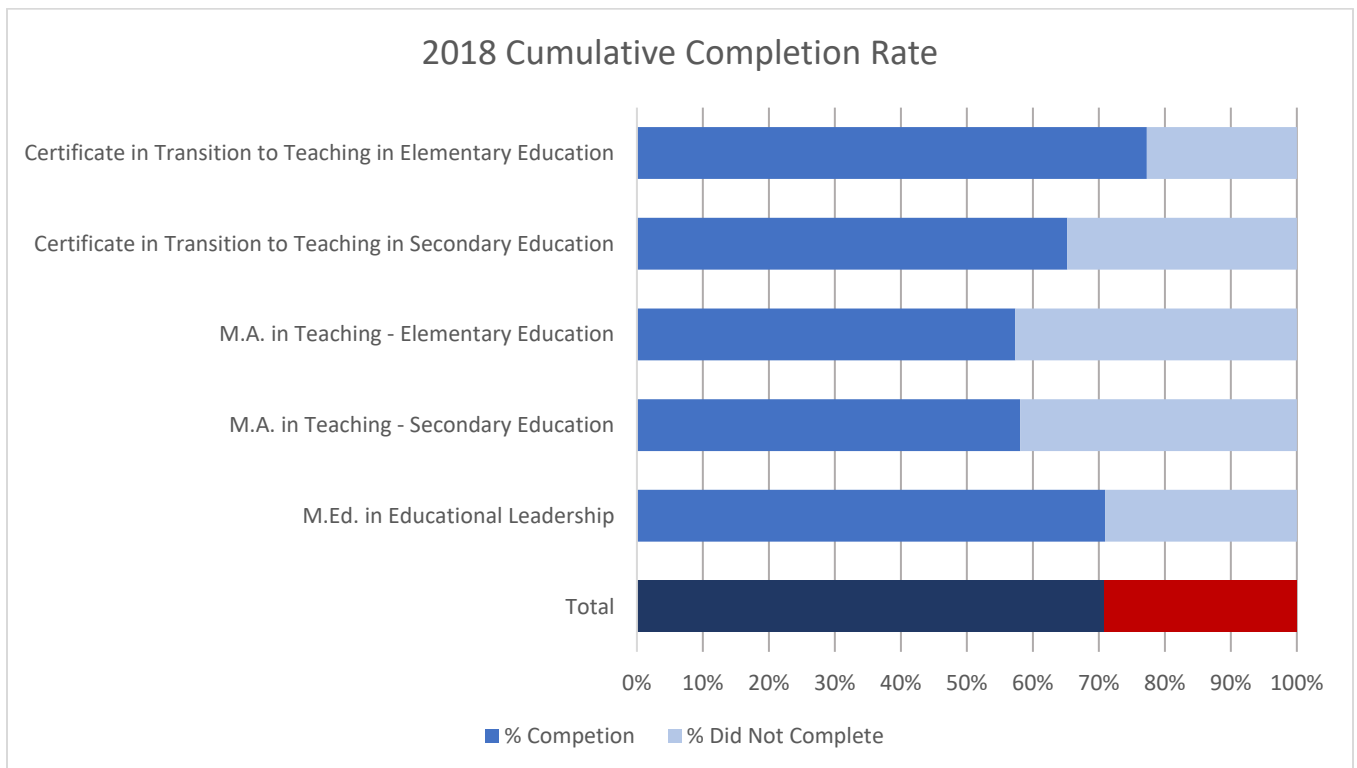

American College of Education calculates an annual cumulative completion rate. ACE defines a completion rate as the number of students graduating in each program using expected time to completion for their program; all programs listed below have an expectation to complete in three years. Students enrolled after the cutoff for expected time-to-completion are not included in the calculation. Students who did not complete their programs may have transferred to another program, withdrew from the college, or were dismissed from the program.
