

MASTER OF EDUCATION IN Educational Leadership

Get More Aha Moments

American College of Education is founded by educators, for educators. We offer accredited online master's and doctorate degrees, as well as certificate programs for educators and paths to new teacher licensure. As the fourth largest conferrer of Master of Education degrees in the nation,* we have more than 20 programs to choose from based on your interests and career aspirations.

As a college founded by educators, for educators, we know the best person to lead a school and to inspire change on a broader scale is a former teacher—someone who knows what it's like to be in front of the classroom and wants to see every student have that 'Aha' moment.

With your master's degree in Educational Leadership, you learn how to set the tone for your school and district and become a role model for both teachers and students in your community as you work to provide a safe and supportive learning environment and to connect with community leaders. By becoming an educational leader, you make it possible for teachers to teach and for children to learn.

MASTER OF EDUCATION

Educational Leadership

The More You Learn, the More Your Students Learn

Want to know our learning objectives? Here are the big ideas you will learn as a student in the Master of Education in Educational Leadership program.

Learn What Makes An Effective Leader

As educators, we know every teacher is a leader. As a principal, superintendent, or district coordinator, you take the ultimate leadership role—motivating and inspiring both teachers and students to do their best work and making challenging decisions for the ultimate benefit of your community. Learn how to run a school and district, from day-to-day administrative work to managing and motivating teachers and other educational support staff to working with state and local officials, all to provide an outstanding learning environment.

Back It Up with Data

Take your assessment strategies to the next level. Learn to effectively use data and ongoing assessments so you can help your campus to meet and exceed established goals. Use peer-reviewed qualitative and quantitative research to make practical and effective interventions across your campus.

Land Your First Leadership Role

Like new teachers, educational leaders need effective mentoring. Partner with an educational leader and complete an internship toward principal certification. Learn how to network and prepare for your first educational leadership role.

"This program was exactly what I needed. I learned quite a lot from Dr. Wynn and other professors in the Department of Educational Leadership. They really challenged us to do our best on assignments and to apply what we learned to our unique school situations."
